L. A. TIGERS MAULED BY GLENDALÉ

Real Baseball Is Shown
by Local Merchants
in Good Game

SCORE IS 5-0 AT CLOSE

Tigers Come in for Victory and Find Ageson
Is There

The Glendale Merchants team defeated the Los Angeles Tigers yesterday in a nine inning slaughter. The sad news at the end of the ninth inning, when the Tigers started home, read 5 to 0 in favor of the Glendale hurlers. The Los Angeles team came in like Tigers—but they went out like a bunch of lambs. The nine innings of sport and pastime played yesterday at the park on San Fernando road proved to Glendale fans that there is a real baseball team in Glendale.

Ageson held down the mound for Glendale and during the nine frames discouraged 12 of the Los Angeles players by returning them to the bench over the strike-out route. Just to keep down hard feelings he allowed two hits during the game. Hubbs, left fielder, and Mo-lynn, 3rd baseman, for the Tigers, got their bats in front of the pill for a hit each, but found it was no use.

The Merchants connected with the tossing of Evanson for seven hits. King on the receiving end of the Merchants' team was a Rock of Gibraltar and played a good game. Left Fielder Cobb also pleased the fans. A peg from deep left to the plate cut off a possible score in the third frame.

City Manager W. H. Reeves, one of the real baseball fans of Glendale, was in the grandstand.

The Merchants' lineup was as follows: Acosta, 3rd; Wilson, ss; McIntosh, rf; Bell, lb; Cobb, lf; Wales, 2b; McHale, cf; King, catcher; Ageson, pitcher; Kearns, lf; Heidler, 2b; Dutcher, cf.

The score follows:

L. A. Tigers	0	2	0
Merchants	5	7	0

BUSINESS WOMEN TO PICNIC IN WOODLANDS

To Install Officers on Day of Outing at Last Meeting

Members of the Business and Professional Women's club will have their social function of the present club year and installation of new officers and committee chairmen Tuesday evening at Verdugo Woodlands in the picnic grounds and pavilion of the Newport company. It is a delightful situation, and plenty of chairs and tables and electric light make it convenient and ideal for a function of that kind.

A car will leave the station on the Glendale-Montrose line at 5:50 and another car 15 or 20 minutes later and the picnic lunch will be spread about 6:30 when the coffee, which is to be made over a picnic fire, is done.

Members are privileged to invite as many guests as they are prepared to bring lunch for, or picnic equipment for in the way of plates, cups, knives, forks, spoons, etc. The guests may be the sweethearts, husbands, brothers, sons or women friends and relatives.

The main feature of the after-luncheon program will be the installation of new officers by their predecessors who will devise a ceremonial appropriate to the occasion. Some of these are likely to be highly unique and diverting. At the annual meeting a number of suggestions for the coming year were turned in and these will be discussed together with any new ones which may be contributed to the suggestion box.

Every member is urged to come and bring as many guests as she chooses to entertain. Those who fail to attend will miss a delightful outing. It takes about 15 minutes to make the ride by trolley, the fare being 5 cents, and the conductor will know where to put off the picnic passengers.

PALM SPRINGS TO BE NATIONAL PARK

The many owners in Glendale of property located around Palm Springs are pleased to learn that the government is about to convert Palm canyon into a national park. The town of Palm Springs is experiencing a building boom. A new hotel is being constructed and a number of tile homes are going up. It is stated that property in Palm Springs has taken a wonderful jump in price during the past few weeks.

He's Some Heartbreaker,
He Tells the Police

"Fast, furious and frequent" is the method employed by John Lawrence Le Clair in wooing women, he told Poughkeepsie (N. Y.) police, following his arrest on charges of bigamy. He is said to have eight wives. In telling of his love-making escapades with 78 women since January 1, Le Clair told of fliers that he doesn't draw the line—blonde, brunette, tall, small—they all fall for me!

Intolerance Cannot Destroy Greatest of All Our Possessions

Today, the greatest possession of the human soul is the right of spiritual and intellectual freedom of opinion, according to James W. Foley, poet-philosopher, in "The Listening Post," to be found in this paper this evening.

"Intolerance," says Mr. Foley, "sought to destroy freedom of spirit and thought and action. Intellectual freedom could not be destroyed and never will be."

So Mr. Foley points out that this great possession is the greatest of the human soul. We recommend that you read his article tonight.

Henry James, in his comment on the news of the day on the editorial page, speaks of the loss caused by traffic accidents and alludes to the economic value of persons injured, rather taking exception to the statement that after reaching 72 years of age an individual should be omitted from the reckoning because his productive days are ended.

Splendid editorials touching on topics of everyday interest, features by Dr. Frank Crane, Della Stewart and John Pilgrim, paragraphs, poetry, wise sayings and eastern point of view all go to make a page of excellent reading. Turn to the editorial page this evening for real thought, decided opinions and information.

JINX RIDES IN 4 AUTOS SUNDAY

Eight People Come to Grief as Demon Twists
the Wheel

The jinx hung it on eight motorists yesterday, which means, in short, that the motorists who drove in and through Glendale yesterday failed to exercise the ordinary amount of care in their driving. It was the same lack of care that is responsible for dozens of accidents and several deaths in Southern California every week. Two of the accidents reported to the Glendale police yesterday occurred on Verdugo road, one at the corner of Central and Colorado and one at Sixth and Grand View.

A car belonging to the Holland Woolley Cartier company, 821 South Hill street, collided with a machine driven by O. J. May, 548 West Oak street, at the corner of Central and Colorado at 7 p. m. Little damage was done and no one was injured. Way at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

An accident occurred at the corner of Verdugo road and Opechee noon, when the machine driven by A. J. Mitchell of Los Angeles, ran down a motorcycle on which P. G. Starger, also of Los Angeles, was riding. The motorcycle was badly battered up, and the fender of the machine was smashed. Except for being badly shaken up the drivers of the machine were unhurt.

A collision occurred at the corner of Verdugo road and Glendale avenue at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon when machines driven by Simeon Carter, 617 Carrillo, Los Angeles, and R. E. Messenger, 2382 Coronado, Los Angeles, met. The fenders of both machines were bent, but otherwise no damage was done.

Machines driven by Theodore Haig, 1108 San Rafael street and Everett G. Forrest, 202 Ellenwood Drive, Los Angeles, collided at the corner of Sixth and Grand View at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The machines were slightly damaged but no one was hurt.

MAN'S SKULL UNEARTHED IN BUILDING

Plow Turns in Ancient Skeleton Believed Many Years Old

IN LUMBER YARD

Apparently That of Prehistoric Indian Who Died From Violence

While plowing up ground for the new addition to the independent lumber yard at San Fernando road and Doran street Saturday afternoon, workmen turned up with a scraper of dirt that had been removed from the foundation for the new yard buildings.

Mr. E. F. Heiser, proprietor of the yard, said that the skull was evidently that of an Indian that had been buried there in the years before civilization had come to California.

Workmen will search the dirt that has already been taken from the foundation in an effort to find other parts of the skeleton. It is the belief of Mr. Heiser that the remainder of the skeleton has been scraped up in the scraper. The skull gave evidence of having been near the surface of the earth. The bones are very brittle and break at the slightest touch.

KNIGHTS TEMPLAR DINNER DANCE IS SUCCESS

Reynolds Covers Himself
With Glory in Management of the Dinner

The dinner dance given Saturday night by Glendale Commandery, Knights Templar, though strictly informal, will long be remembered as a function.

Will Reynolds, who had charge of the dinner, covered himself with glory. It was divided into five courses, beginning with a fruit cocktail, followed by a meat and vegetable course, then salad, ending with coffee and strawberry shortcake.

Good music was furnished by a local orchestra throughout the meal and there was dancing between several of the courses.

Bones on all the window ledges were banked with roses and at the east end of the hall a summer house effect was produced with lattice-work twined with vines and flowers, with an added note of color furnished by balloons. The wires which span the hall were also festooned with ferns.

Tables circled the hall, the guests being seated next to the wall, leaving the center of the room free for dancing. Special numbers were furnished by Lois Naudain, who gave a Spanish dance in costume, beautifully; and Howard Fraser of Tujunga in Scotch costume, who executed an intricate sword dance to a bagpipe accompaniment played by his father, Harry H. Fraser, and who also gave another Scotch number.

The enthusiasm of the company mounted as the evening progressed and Commander Moyle introduced "France" Henry, chairman of entertainment, as the man chiefly responsible for the good time they were having. Somebody asked why the commander had not called him Scotland instead of France. Mr. Moyle explained that was the name by which he was known to Rotarians, and then everybody began to call his neighbor by his first name and Sir Knight Peckham called for Ethel Moyle to come to the center of the hall, then Emily Henry, Lillian Peckham, Bernadine Worley, Margaret Campbell and Alice Hoag.

Before this "France" Henry had enticed to the center of the floor the newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Greer and Mr. and Mrs. Bly, and at a signal the orchestra played the wedding march for a grand march around the hall, led by the officers with the bridegrooms bringing up the rear.

When the ladies mentioned above were called to the floor and presented, they organized for a similar march around the room with the two brides.

The full committee of which Mr. Henry was the chairman included W. W. Worley, Dr. Roy V. Hogue, C. L. Peckham and Riley Lyons. After the special diversions mentioned dancing was general. It was one of the most pleasant evenings the commandery has enjoyed for a long, long time.

HOOGH HAD HIM
Harry O'Lindsay of 4160 Parkdale drive, Los Angeles, was taken to the Glendale police department last night suffering from too much booze.

The "Follow Up"

The "follow up" is a development of the last ten years in merchandising and propaganda of all sorts from the ward politician to the department store.

The "follow up" is figured at more than 50 per cent of all campaigns initiated for converts, customers, good will—or for the creation of bad will for opponents.

Every merchant is touched by it. Every citizen is embraced by it in some form or other, until it would seem that the system of follow up is the keynote to putting things across in any place where humans draw their breath.

Glendale, its people, its merchants and its organizations, are rather lacking in a system of follow up.

A thing is started, announced to be in process of forming. Then something else takes the stage and the half formed original plan, however good, is forgotten. And a series of things half started, half finished, reveal a more or less confused state of affairs through which progress is made, not by which the city is advanced.

The logical thought (in view of this condition, is for a conservation of effort. For a competent follow up—a follow up planned thoroughly long before the project is launched. And that follow up should be preceded by an analysis of every detail, particularly for the detection of defects that might wreck the project. Better to junk or reframe in the early stages.

The argument for proper follow up applies strongly to the merchandising in the city.

Merchants place advertising in newspapers and await results. If the single advertisement fails of dollar for dollar return, exit advertising, and gloom and a feeling for some panacea follows.

Advertising should not be done without adequate preparation to insure its success. There are a hundred different wants of insuring the success of even a small advertisement.

There is the cutting a large display into smaller continuous display. The follow up of these advertisements convey the first definite impression to the people that this store is different in some way. That its prices and goods are distinctive. Larger advertisements should then be placed. These will further arouse interest. The follow up is working.

Then comes the first sale or bit for direct results. Incidentally, the publicity, in the news columns, available in Glendale as it is not available elsewhere.

This is insurance against failure. It cannot fail, unless the merchant stops his preparation with his advertising. If he does not visualize his customers, studies when they are in a mood to buy, when they have the time to buy and how they buy. If a merchant advertises a bargain, of what avail to the customer if the latter finds the store closed when he comes in buying mood? Of what use if the line is incomplete and is presented as a full line? These things waste money, time and follow up efforts. Better no effort.

Let the progress of the city, its various interests be preceded with adequate preparation, analysis and forethought and by program checked for defects. Then it will be such a gradual unfolding that will be a marvel of efficiency.

Projects originated should be founded solidly upon the demonstrated influence of the solid leaders of the community, who should be checked for qualities of leadership, by certain tests, that of personal success, of personal influence, of breadth of vision, and capacity of achievement.

Once they have laid out the fundamental lines, established the project as a going business of the city, as it were, it is time then to turn the matter over to efficient assistants, paid or otherwise, for the conducting of the project along these hard drawn, rigid lines to success.

Building Committee Receives Interior Drawings of Building

Interior plans for the new high school at Broadway and Verdugo are now on view at the school and are being studied by the building committee of the high school trustees and by the heads of departments. Suggestions for betterment are being recorded and will be turned over to the architects.

As accepted they provide for an administration building near the center of the Broadway frontage which will be 346 feet long and from which the auditorium will extend to the south.

The practical arts building will be on the corner of Broadway and Verdugo road and the science building will be on the east of the administration structure, with space enough left for another building at the corner of the site to the east.

HALL LEADS IN OREGON PRIMARY

PORTLAND, Ore., May 2.—Chas. Hall of Marshfield was leading Governor Olcott in the race for the republican gubernatorial nomination, according to figures compiled today. The count stood: Hall, 41,932; Olcott, 41,853. Reputedly the home fellow who had entered the home at 1144, had not been in yet. Olcott recently denounced the Ku Klux Klan and its activities in Oregon and in light has been mainly on that issue.

W. C. T. U. HOST TIES THE CITY WITH RIBBONS

Vanguard of Delegates to Convention Arrive in Glendale

OPENS ON TUESDAY

Local Committeemen
Seek Sleeping Quarters for Visitors

Glendale was filled today by the arriving hosts of the W. C. T. U. for the convention opening Tuesday. The time is set for the convention, which will open in this city, the "convention town," at 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning. This will be the 40th annual convention of the Southern California branch of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, and promises to be the most interesting gathering ever held by this body.

During the past few days the local committeemen have been working overtime trying to secure sleeping accommodations for the 300 or more delegates who will come from points distant to Glendale. Those living within a convenient run of Glendale will go home after each day's sessions, but those residing at a considerable distance are being provided for. For the purpose of giving these visitors the very best possible accommodations, hundreds of homes in Glendale have been opened to them. At an early hour this morning the arrival of these delegates began, and they continued to make their appearance throughout the entire day. As they came they were assigned to the homes they are to occupy until the convention closes.

Dr. Jessie A. Russell, chairman of the reception committee, has been on the job since the first bell sounded this morning, and throughout the day she and her assistants have been striving to take care of the visitors as rapidly as they arrive. Everything but confusion reigned. So well had all the details been taken care of that the reception of the delegates was a matter of carrying out orders.

The convention will be held in the First Methodist church, corner Kenwood and Wilson streets. Throughout the day Mrs. Edith Dockery, chairman of the registration committee, has been on hand to "sign up" the delegates as they arrived. Mrs. Jennie Motern, chairman of the assignment committee, was in personal charge of assigning the visitors to the homes which they will occupy, while Mrs. Louis Motern of the information committee answered approximately 4,000 questions up to the noon hour.

The entertainment features of the convention are being taken care of by Mrs. O. S. Palmer and her committee, while the music will be taken care of by Mrs. Lilly Richardson and her committee. Mrs. T. A. Wright, church hostess, is doing the "polite stunt" with wonderful effect.

Meetings of the executive committee will be held at 2:30 this afternoon and 7 o'clock tonight. At these meetings the final arrangements for the convention will be thrashed out.

A very elaborate program has been prepared for this convention. A detailed report of the program for the opening day was published in Saturday's issue of the Glendale Daily Press. This will start with a pre-convention prayer meeting at 8:30 in the morning and will close with the announcements at about 10:30 o'clock at night.

BURGLARS VISIT THREE HOMES IN GLENDALÉ

North Brand and Verdugo
Road Residences Are Entered by Thieves

The 1100 block on North Brand boulevard was the scene of several robberies Saturday night. At about 10 o'clock the police were notified by H. H. Harris of 1144 North Brand that someone had just robbed his house. Upon responding it was found that a number of articles of value had been taken and that the thief had made his getaway in record order.

Before the police left the community they learned that a thief, supposedly the same fellow who had entered the home at 1144, had gaudied an entrance to the dwelling at 1140 and had been successful in taking a sack of articles from that home.

The home of Mrs. Hern, corner Broadway and Verdugo road, was entered by thieves at about 10:40 last night, entrance having been gained an entrance to the dwelling which was forced open. A few articles were taken. The Glendale police are now working on this case.

Spirits Reveal Triangle in Mid West Divorce Case

Dr. Florence Fowler has been accused of maintaining a love nest for the husband of Mrs. Emanuel H. Kuttner of Lombard, Ill., winning him away after 16 years of married life. Dr. Fowler scoffs at her accuser, maintaining that Mrs. Kuttner first got the idea during one of her "spiritualistic seances."

Days of '49 Draws Huge Growth of Whiskers

SACRAMENTO, May 23.—Romance, red-shirted, high-booted and bearded, came back today with the opening of the week's celebration here to commemorate the "days of old, the days of gold, the days of '49."

Over 50,000 visitors swarmed the city on the opening day to be greeted by citizens who, instead of bearing the stamp of 1922, had turned back time over three-quarters of a century and emulated the life, customs, modes of dress and facial adornment of the pioneer forefathers of the state.

On Sacramento streets the flappers of today have disappeared, and have been replaced by the daintily dressed, modest girls of six decades ago, their skirts, replete with ruffles, reaching to the ground.

Hangtown, where Judge Lynch and the Vigilantes once held sway, has been reconstructed, and a complete village of the mushroom '49 days, including many of the famous old landmarks, welcomed the visitors.

By far the center of interest of the visitors, many of whom have arrived dressed in '49 costumes themselves, is the Whisker palace, where the longest beard in the world is exhibited by its proud possessor, Hans N. Langseth, of Barney, N. D. Langseth won the spinach honors after a nationwide search had been conducted. He was brought to the celebration at the city's expense and is being paid for exhibiting his hirsute growth.

Prizes for the heaviest beards grown in 30 and 60 days and prizes for the most distinguished beards cultivated in the same period will also be given. Whiskers of every style the world possesses, from glaring mutton-chop sideburns to '49 beards and the Gloucester fisherman brand are personally exhibited under the auspices of the Whisker club, of which Clyde Seavy, city manager of Sacramento, is president.

FIRE SENTENCES ARE SUSPENDED

La Crescenta Men Had No Malicious Intent
in Brush Fires

J. W. Howland and Jack Clark were each fined $25 in Justice of Peace Owen C. Emery's court at Glendale last week for burning brush without a permit. The sentence was suspended, because the offense was not committed with malicious intent. J. A. Graves, malicious intent, made the warden for this district, made the arrest. A permit must be secured from C. Jennings Young on Honolulu and Los Angeles avenues and Charles Waste of New York and Michigan avenues before burning brush.

THORNYCROFT IS SCENE OF THEFT

Shortly after 2 o'clock Saturday morning burglars gained entrance to the administration building of Thornycroft hospital. The theft was reported by Mrs. Miller, who stated that thieves got away with a few small articles of value. Up to this time nothing has been learned as to the identity of the thieves.

LOS ANGELES WINS 1924 OLYMPIAD

French Sportsmen Practically Give Up Hope of Games

FUNDS UNAVAILABLE

Working Hard But Are Unable to Get Backing

PARIS, May 22.—French sportsmen today practically abandoned hope of holding the 1924 Olympic games in Paris.

Los Angeles, it is agreed, probably will stage the eighth Olympiad.

The situation has steadily drifted in favor of the California site, which is next choice if the French cannot raise the necessary funds and today the United Press was authoritatively informed that France may have to abandon her claim in favor of the United States.

Deputy Noblesmaire, who will report to the chamber of deputies concerning the needed credits, has not given up hope, and wrote to the Olympic committee here that he would make every effort to secure the vote of money before the deadline, June 7. He added that if the chamber could not vote credits before that time, Premier Poincaré's promise to secure them afterwards might be sufficient to prevent France to renounce the games.

The United Press was authoritatively informed, however, that Poincaré will not do this. Deputies are squabbling over proportioning of the credits asked, and because many object to voting any money, the premier cannot take such a step, but will leave the matter to parliament.

Poincaré personally is known to be in favor of the credits, but emphasized the fact that if the chamber of deputies did not want to consider the matter before June 7, he would not urge it.

The forthcoming foreign affairs debate and the question of reparations and a financial conference are so much more important to France than the Olympics, it is said that the government may decide to give up the games.

HI BOYS TRY FOR TENNIS HONORS

Enter Southern California
Tryouts at Los Angeles
City Club

The boys' tennis team of Glendale high school was entered in the Southern California try-out meet Saturday at the Los Angeles City club, the local school being represented by Bob Stanford and Howard Wimmer in the doubles and Tom Woods and Tom Morgan in the singles.

Of the four players left to compete for finals next Saturday at the same place, Tom Morgan was one. He will play against representatives of Alhambra, Hollywood and one other school which he could not remember. In doubles the Glendale won one and lost one game.

A Central league contest was set for next Saturday at Alhambra, but tinasmuch as Alhambra's representative is a contestant for the Southern California championship, the Central league tournament will probably be postponed.

JINGLING JAZZ OF THE NEWS By Bert Marple

The Glendale baseball tossers put it over L. A. Tigers. By 5 to nix they spread the white ribbons are coming in—the latch-string they are pulling: We'll give the big glad hand to every one.

The scouts are getting ready for their jaunt to Catalina. Four snaphooks were reported yesterday: The sneak thief's on the job again and North Brand homes are entered. While Thornycroft was "robber-ed" too, they say.

The Sunday school convention was the biggest meeting ever "Hush Money" at the Glendale tells a tale: You'll giggle when you hear "Brother Watermelon's" with us. Pacific folks will picnic without fail.

Up to Verdugo Woodlands business women soon will wander. On Thursday night chautauqua starts, I guess: The Presbyterian kiddies will be active with their parties. Miss Barlow and Mrs. Pearls are with The Press.

ELKS' DANCE IS BIG SUCCESS
The ballroom of the Elks' club was well filled on Saturday night when they gave one of their regular monthly dances, which are becoming so popular. It was an informal affair and everyone came for a good time, and found it.

Music for dancing was furnished by William Bode and Herb Henning's orchestra and was splendid. During the evening refreshing punch was served.

THE WEBBS ENTERTAIN WITH DANCE PARTY
Dr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Webb of East Colorado entertained Saturday evening with a dancing party for the friends of their daughters, Misses Elizabeth and Marcella Webb, in the auditorium of the chamber of commerce. Airy balloons in great numbers furnished a rainbow of color and fine music made the dance program all that it should be.

Miss Elizabeth Webb is now a student at the Wallis School of Dramatic Art. Her guest list included fellow students there, and alumni of Glendale high, from which she was graduated. Miss Marcella's friends who were present numbered many of her classmates in Glendale high. About 100 guests were entertained, the young people being chaperoned by Dr. and Mrs. Webb, Mrs. George Roach and Mrs. L. I. Robinson.

THE FARBERS ARE SURPRISED BY FRIENDS
Mr. and Mrs. Farber of 219 East Palmer avenue, who are leaving soon to spend the summer in Canada, were given a delightful surprise by their friends who invited them to a delicious dinner and beautiful auto drive through Ventura, returning by way of Santa Susana Pass.

The party included Mr. and Mrs. Thimm of Central avenue, Mr. and Mrs. Plunkett, Mr. and Mrs. Khistle of Magnolia avenue and Mr. and Mrs. Hausman of North Louise street.

THE WELLS SPEND WEEK-END WITH DAUGHTER

Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Wells of 339 West Harvard street, spent the week-end with their daughter, Mrs. E. D. Davey of Glendale, formerly of Glendale. On Sunday morning, Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Goodrich and daughter, Miss Betty and son, Dean, of this city and Miss Margaret Boucher of Hollywood, motored to Glendale and met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Davey. They motored 5 miles beyond San Dimas dam and a bountiful lunch was spread under the maples and oaks on the bank of the east fork of San Gabriel river. After lunch the crowd climbed the trail which led to the beautiful waterfall. They declared it to be one of the most wonderful spots of California.

About four o'clock all motored back to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Davey and Mrs. Davey surprised them with a delicious supper. After supper all returned home, tired, but happy.

MRS. TERREY GIVES FIVE COURSE DINNER

Mrs. H. Torrey of 218 West Doran street entertained Saturday evening with a 5-course dinner in honor of a bride-to-be, Miss Ida Herrington of Los Angeles, who will soon become the bride of G. Woodward. The guests were members of the ladies' furnishing department at Robinson's, of which Miss Herrington was formerly manager.

The table was beautifully decorated with roses, carnations and greenery and covers were laid for the honoree, Miss Ida Herrington, Mrs. Doyle, Mrs. Crawford, Mrs. Brain, Miss Williams, Miss Wick, Miss Sharrick, Miss Trautman, Miss Webster, Mrs. Forbes, Mrs. S. F. Hayden of Pasadena, Miss Drinkwater, Miss Ida Antrim and the hostess, Mrs. H. Torrey.

After the delicious dinner had been served, an evening of music and dancing was enjoyed.

PACIFIC AVE. FOLKS HAVE AN OUTING
A large crowd enjoyed the quiet outing held at Griffith park Sunday immediately following the morning service at Pacific Avenue Methodist church. They took their lunch and had a pleasant social time, getting back to the church in time to attend the tea cup hour, which is proving so successful. The program and refreshments were in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Tronster.

Mrs. A. H. Montgomery gave two splendid readings, "Under the Stars" and "The Mocking Bird." These were followed by two readings by Mrs. E. B. Moore entitled "The Foreigner's View on the Statue" and "Jane Jones." Community singing was enjoyed and at the close of this social hour, a fine Epworth league meeting, led by Mr. Taylor, was held.

The evening church service was also very well attended.

Theodore Mink and his mother, Mrs. Sophia Mink, of 143 South Isabel street, motored to Orange over Sunday where they visited Mrs. Mink's sister.

About the only thing a man wants after he gets all the thrills he needs is more.

DORIS PACKER GETS HONOR
Hi Girl in University Shakespeare Contest Is in Finals

Miss Mona Gardner and Miss Doris Packer have returned from Berkeley, where Doris was entered in the Shakespearean contest in which the representatives of 46 schools of the state competed.

It was a trying test but Doris distinguished herself, being one of the seven selected from the preliminary contest for the final trial. In the finals she received honorable mention, or fourth place, being especially commended by Prof. Samuel Hume, who had charge of the contest.

Miss Gardner reports that Doris did wonderfully and she was very proud of her pupil.

Miss Gardner also attended several conferences in connection with the convention of the Drama Association of California Teachers. The choice of high school plays and various other questions of interest of instructors were discussed and she secured some valuable pointers on stage construction which will be passed on to the architects of Glendale high.

BRAND DEPARTMENT STORE OPENS TO BIG BUSINESS

Ten Thousand Glendale-ians Give Merchants Profitable Welcome

The Brand Department store opened its doors for the first time at 10 a. m. Saturday and on the first day, according to the estimate of Leo Rosenfeld, one of the owners of the store, approximately 10,000 Glendale-ians visited the establishment. A steam stream of visitors poured into the store during the day and in the evening the place was crowded to capacity. The Shrine club orchestra, under the direction of A. M. Kelley, played the latest jazz and popular music during the evening. A box of candy was given away with each purchase.

Leo Kanner, one of the proprietors of the store and general manager, said this morning: "I want to thank every Glendale-ian who attended our opening on Saturday. I want to thank them for the spirit in which they extended a friendly greeting to a new business enterprise opening here. The turnout at our opening was beyond anything that we had planned and my partners and myself appreciate it. We want particularly to thank the Glendale State bank, Mrs. F. S. Madden, Grossman-Miller, Cooper-Coates & Casey, Mr. and Mrs. F. McG. Kelly, Edward Kerker, Miss Dorothy and Mr. Frank and K. Kuranaga for their compliments in sending flowers to us on our opening day. We are glad to know the people of Glendale and hope to get better acquainted each day."

Mr. Rosenfeld, who has charge of the dry goods department, said that the people of Glendale would find a larger stock on the shelves today than it was possible to display at the opening, as several shipments of merchandise arrived so late that it was impossible to put them on the shelves before the opening. This merchandise is being put on the shelves today.

Mr. Kanner said that sales on opening day were very gratifying. The company had not planned to do a great deal of business on that day as the object of the opening was to get acquainted with the people of the city. The amount of sales were a great surprise and very gratifying to the proprietors, as it indicated that the people of Glendale had accepted the new store and were showing it by their patronage.

Greenery and flowers in profusion and an attractive display of merchandise featured the opening. The entire staff of clerks was on hand during the day and assisted the management in receiving the visitors and showing the store and its stock.

Potted greenery at the entrance, attractive show windows in which artistry and commercialism are combined, make the new store a distinct addition to the business life of North Brand boulevard.

Mr. Jones at a dinner party had been trying to say something nice to his hostess, "What a small appetite you have, Mr. Jones," she remarked.

"To sit next to you, Mrs. Smith," he replied, "would cause any man to lose his appetite."

And then he wondered why he wasn't invited to the next affair.

Rev. McQuilkin SPEAKS AT CHURCH

Opening Another Week at First Presbyterian for Young People

Rev. Robert McQuilkin spoke at the Presbyterian church three times on Sunday, in beginning another week's work, this being the earnest request of those especially in charge of young people's work. Each evening this week except Saturday he will speak from 7:30 to 8:30. Every one is invited and will be interested.

His morning theme was "God's Word and Young People." A brief outline follows:

"The Bible is the solution for every problem that young people may have. It is a revelation, unyielding; if to any one it is a puzzle, there is something wrong somewhere. It is the most misunderstood book, but it is intended to be just the opposite. It is not an obscuration, but a revelation. But it needs study to get it, till we understand what it has for us. Faith does not mean understanding to believe something that is not true. We are not to put aside our questions; we must get clear first. 'Everything in the book has present meaning for my life. It is all and altogether personal, concerning Christ and ourselves. It does not exist for itself but to lead us to Him. The important thing is for us to get to Him. We need to know Jesus as Paul did, to speak with first-hand authority. If you do not know Him in such a way as saves from sin, you do not know the full meaning of Jesus.'"

In the afternoon Mr. McQuilkin's former classmate, Mr. Morris Kimber, now of Hollywood, spoke on young people's amusements, stressing that God wants our bodies kept in the best condition, and they should, therefore, have the best of recreations. Mr. McQuilkin's central thought was that Christ in our heart does not keep pleasures out but brings joy in.

In the evening Mr. McQuilkin spoke with very great impressiveness on the theme "God's Word and Young People."

CHAUTAUQUA IS ORGANIZING ITS WORK

Program to Open Here Thursday Evening at Eight o'clock

Intensive work began today in the interests of the Ellison-White Chautauqua, which will open in Glendale next Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. The big tent, which arrived today in charge of Ronald A. Milnar, a young college student, will be located at Harvard and Orange streets.

Mrs. T. B. Thatcher, the Chautauqua director, arrived yesterday, from Phoenix, Ariz., where she conducted the program to be given here.

Mrs. Thatcher reports that the program has met with enthusiastic approval all along the line since the circuit began in Abbeville, Louisiana April 16. Every town has rebooked for 1923. Chautauqua nations in the various towns disagree as to who is the greatest attraction, but all agree that among Frances Ingram, Norman Allan Irie, Opie Read, Dr. Elmer Lynn Williams, the Glivar Opera company and "Cappy Ricks," all headline numbers, the program is worth very much more than the price of the season ticket, which is $2.50.

"The children find a great deal of enjoyment in the opening evening, when Mr. Robert Fleming and company present a thrilling mystery entertainment," Mrs. Thatcher said.

L. T. Rowley, chairman of the local guarantors' committee, requests that every guarantor be present at the Chamber of Commerce tomorrow, Tuesday evening, at 8 o'clock, to plan for the successful windup of the season ticket sale. Time and place of sale of announced seats will probably be announced tomorrow.

POSTMASTER GETS CONGRATULATIONS OFFICIALLY

General Work Pleased With Showing in Glendale Postal Service

A letter was received today by Postmaster D. Ripley Jackson from the office of the Postmaster General commending Mr. Jackson and his corps of assistants on their work during Postal Improvement week. The letter from Mr. Work indicated that the department appreciated the efforts of the local office to get acquainted with the public during the week. The "open house" of that week is a new departure for the postoffice department and Mr. Work indicated in his letter that the results in Glendale were very gratifying.

The letter from the Postmaster General follows: "May 16, 1922.

"D. Ripley Jackson,
"Postmaster,
"Glendale, Calif.
"My Dear Sir—I have your letter of May 11 reporting your activities during Postal Improvement week. I am very grateful for the efforts of yourself and force and I am sure they will be of definite assistance in securing the co-operation of the public.
"Please accept my thanks and extend them on to your co-workers.
"With kindest regards,
"I am, sincerely,
"Hubert Work."

This letter has been posted on the bulletin board at the postoffice and all of the clerks and carriers have had their attention called to it.

The letter was written in response to a letter from Postmaster Jackson in which he outlined the program as followed in the Glendale office during Postal Improvement week. Clippings of publicity from the daily papers in Glendale and copies of screen advertising told the entire story of the week here.

Postmaster Jackson and his force have received several commendatory letters from the office of the Postmaster General since the changing of the office here from a branch station to an independent office of the first class.

Business at Glendale has shown a marked increase since the appointment of Mr. Jackson as postmaster and George Hallett as assistant postmaster. This increase has been favorably commented on several times from the head of the department.

With the commendatory letters work in the local office has increased to such an extent that additional help will be requested and in all probability granted July 1 with the beginning of the postoffice fiscal year.

Postmaster Jackson said this morning that after the office has moved to its new location in the Ralph's blocks on West Broadway, July 1, that he and his assistant, Mr. Hallett, will be in need of a vacation as they have been working day and night, planning the new building and supervising the work of securing equipment.

The work of handling the mails has been transacted during the day by these officials and they have spent their evenings planning the building and in conference with the men who are equipping it.

Mrs. William Dacon of Fresno, Calif., spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Thomas of 339 West Milford street. Mrs. Dacon is Mr. Thomas' aunt and she is making an extended visit through the South.

NAZARENE TENT REVIVAL DRAWS PRESS ADDS TO HAPPY FAMILY

Rev. J. E. Bates, Supt. of Southern Division Preaches Sunday

The revival meetings at the Nazarene tent on Glendale avenue near Broadway, are being well attended and successful in the salvation of souls. At 2:30 p. m. Rev. J. E. Bates, superintendent of the Southern California district, preached a stirring message on the baptism of Jesus with water and the Holy Spirit and showed by the scripture that the baptism of Jesus was greater than John's baptism, because John's baptism was only with water unto repentance, while Jesus' baptism was with the Holy Spirit and fire. He also showed that people who are baptized with water have failed to seek the most important baptism of Jesus with the Holy Spirit.

At 7:30 Rev. Eckles, a returned missionary from Japan, gave a very earnest message describing the need of Japan and said they have revivals in Japan on the old fashioned line in which the people prayed and wept their ways through to God until God witnessed to their hearts that they were saved and sanctified.

Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. Rev. P. G. Leineweaver, former superintendent of Northern California district, and now dean of the boys' dormitory of the Pasadena dormitory, will preach again. Wednesday, at 7:30 p. m. Rev. Mrs. M. Addy, a woman highly recommended from Pasadena university, will preach. We expect special singing from the university quartet and others. Meetings every night at 7:30 except Saturday. Everybody welcome.

2000 KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS AT MEETING

Santa Cruz Swarms With Cases From All Over the United States

SANTA CRUZ, May 22.—With 2000 Knights of Columbus, and as many more of their friends, here for the opening this morning of the twentieth annual state convention of the "Casesys," Santa Cruz has taken on gay holiday attire. The principal streets and buildings of the city are lavishly decorated for the coming convention, this being the first Knights of Columbus state council to be held in Santa Cruz.

A street parade this morning was participated in by officials of the state and city, with representatives from the leading fraternal, civic and patriotic organizations of Santa Cruz and nearby cities. Mayor Charles C. Kratzenstein, chairman of the citizens' committee, co-operating with the Knight of Columbus in their convention activities, presided over the morning's activities. Robert Cardiff was chairman of the parade arrangements. James E. O'Connor, past grand knight of the Santa Cruz "Casesys" and chairman of the Knights of Columbus convention committee, was in charge of the afternoon's program, which followed the solemn high mass at Holy Cross church.

Yesterday, cluster of one hundred candidates was initiated into the second and third degrees. The officers of San Jose council conferred the second degree. Supreme Warden David F. Supple of San Francisco exemplified the major degree, assisted by Frank O'Neill of Los Angeles, and the state degree conferred by the citizens' committee, and divided the afternoon between auto sightseeing and visiting the various landmarks of this city, including the world-famous old Santa Cruz mission.

A banquet to the class of initiates and the officials of the citizens' committee, took place Sunday. Michael Leonard, commander of the local American Legion post, was toastmaster. Addresses were made by Mayor C. C. Kratzenstein of Santa Cruz, State Deputy Joseph Coyne of Los Angeles, Supreme Warden David F. Supple of San Francisco, Grand Knight George S. Tait, Jr. of Santa Cruz, and Rev. J. Clifford, state chaplain of the Knights of Columbus organization.

This morning the state convention formally opened with a pontifical solemn high mass at 9 a. m. in Holy Cross church. The first convention session will start at 11 a. m. in Odd Fellows' hall. At noon a novel fish dinner and beach barbecue will be served the visiting knights, ladies and friends, on the famous Santa Cruz beach. Enoch Alzina is chairman of the beach party arrangements. Another convention session is slated for this afternoon.

JOY OF SAVED SOUL IS AN ABIDING ONE

So Says Dr. Funk at the First Lutheran Church

Speaking on the subject of "A Little While," the Rev. H. C. Funk, pastor of the First Lutheran church said, in part, yesterday: "We have often heard our German and Scandinavian friends spoken of as living on a very little, while their neighbors are having a good time. That may be true! But they don't expect to live that way all the time. They are willing to deny themselves a little while in order that they may have something to keep them in comfort in the latter days of their lives. So it were better to suffer for a little while now and enjoy the ages of eternity, rather than enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season and then be compelled to suffer the torments of hell throughout eternity. Paul had been beaten with forty stripes, save one, again and again, yet he could say 'I reckon that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory that shall be revealed in us.'"

"Christian is sometimes referred to as a man of sorrowful countenance, while the ungodly man is having a good time of it. But we must not imagine that the Christian is the only one that has trials and tribulations in this life, for he has both the promise for the life that no wis and for that which is to come. The worldly man has his trials, some of which the Christian need not endure. Also, he too, will have reason to be sad when he looks into the open grave and faces the judgment bar with no preparation for the journey.

"And in answer to the question, 'What is the difference between the suffering of the Christian and the worldly minded man?' we may say that one is only for a little while. On the other hand, while there is a sense of pleasure in sinful indulgence, this is only for a little while, whereas the joy of the saved soul is abiding and constantly increasing.

Truths in Epigram

The secret of success is constancy to purpose. — Disraeli (1804-1881).

The poor must be wisely visited and liberally cared for, so that mendacity shall not be tempted into mendacity, nor want exasperated into crime. — Winthrop (1809-1894).

It is hard for an empty bag to stand upright. — Franklin (1706-1790).

DR. CRANE'S NERVES

The lucid and affable Dr. Frank Crane writes in deprecation of city noises. For special condemnation he selects the honking appurtenance that does so much to make the automobile a thing of horror. There are many noises that it would be impossible to banish. Much of the clamor of the automobile horn is not only superfluous but impertinent. When the traffic officer has halted a line of vehicles, those at the rear are wont to honk in protest. This is a bit of sheer insolence, indicating bad temper and bad breeding. So the man who calls at a private house for some woman he intends to escort, and instead of announcing himself properly, stays at the curb and bellows his presence through a tin horn, is a boor.

The automobile driver shifts too much of his responsibility to the horn on his machine. He sees that he is about to strike a pedestrian ahead. He does not slacken speed, nor swerve. All he does is to blare a note announcing his approach. If the pedestrian hears it, jumps in time, and jumps in the right direction, all is well. If he fails to hear it, or is confused and leaps to the front of another machine, it is hospital or morgue for him, but the driver passes on with conscience clear. He considers his full duty done when he sounds an alarm.

Probably there would be fewer accidents were automobile horns banished, and the responsibility placed on the drivers where it belongs. As it is, the horn is a mere alibi for the reckless speeder.

READING THE SIGNS

Gifford Pinchot has wrecked the political machine in Pennsylvania. There will be all sorts of explanations, just as there was when Beveridge astounded the country by defeating New in Indiana. In each case there was the explanation of personal triumph, and in each case the real explanation was a revolt against machine politics.

No partisan zeal could have been so blind as to defend the Pennsylvania system, that had ruled that commonwealth since the days of the unsavory Quay, and had wielded a national influence. Penrose and Knox both were of the Quay school. They were able men, shrewd and always for party before they were for the country at large. And the party, as they recognized it, and as they desired it to be recognized, stood for special privilege. In so far as any portion of the republican party stood for special privilege, was known as the instrumentality used to forward the ends of big business, it was not worthy of support. The fate that has overtaken the Pennsylvania machine was inevitable, and none but the most biased partisan could deny that it was deserved. Had Penrose and Knox been spared longer, the outcome might have been delayed, but it could not have been averted. The common intelligence resents the effort of a handful of men to shape the destinies of the country in accord with their own views, especially when these views in themselves are out of consonance with the popular judgment.

There are various weak spots in the republican armor. They offer chance for successful assault. This may be made by democrats, but it is as likely to be made by dissatisfied republicans. The result in Pennsylvania has revealed one of these spots, for it has been smitten and pierced.

There has been much dissatisfaction because of the readiness with which claims against the government were met, unless they happened to be claims of the ex-service men. The railroads got all they wanted. The contractors, crooked or otherwise, went away with pockets bulging. The ex-soldier got little beyond the petulant assurance that he had become a problem. He was not seeking to be a problem. He had offered his life to help the country when a real problem had confronted it. He had been given pledges, the pledges have not been redeemed, and a lot of well-fed civilians are paid for putting additional tangles into the red tape by which he is kept waiting. Such treatment is not pleasing to the millions of ex-soldiers, and these men have friends who are not delighted.

For months there has been virtual assurance that certain war contractors robbed the government. All this time there has been urgent demand for investigation, restitution, the punishment of the guilty, in or out of public life. There has been manifest reluctance to prosecute. An institution that asks and receives nine millions from the government easily comes under the head of big business. The people of the country believe that even if it is big business it is pretty bad business. It may be that the administration will press action, now that tardily enough, action has seemed to be about to begin. Still will voters be curious as to the reason, and inclined to resent the diffidence of approach, the "by your leave" method.

The attempt of congress to whittle the law to a few vagrant chips loafing unmanned and unofficer in the docks failed to win approbation. The assailants of the army did not score. The contingent of senators who attacked the four-power pact injured the party that harbored them, and the republican party had the misfortune to shelter the noisy of them. The passage of the four-power pact in despite of the truculent and sounding minority, was a high and beneficial achievement. It had the effect, however, of calling attention to rejection of the League of Nations, that on a larger scale was designed to fill nicely the purpose of the four-power pact. It was the announcement that partisanship was ready to reject a good thing if the name of the organization favored by the partisan was not "blown-in-the-bottle," so to speak. This did not tend to promote confidence.

There continues to be wrangling over the tariff measure. Meanwhile, for lack of protection, not against the world in general but against Germany, the potash industry of the United States is forced to total loss of equipment and investment, and American consumers are being left to be dealt with by Germany according to its will.

The attitude of the administration towards European questions that have arisen lately is greatly commended. The budget plan is a success. The presence in the cabinet of such able and fearless men as Hughes and Hoover, in itself constitutes a bulwark. But a strong cabinet cannot be expected to offset a weak congress, nor anything within the power of the administration to do, be expected to convince a somewhat irritated public that it should be content to be ruled by such machines as have been smashed in Indiana and Pennsylvania.

IN A SPACIOUS WORLD

When the study of the heavens is undertaken, and an attempt is made to express distances in ordinary mathematical terms, the matter at once becomes hopeless. One reads of "light years," and of stars that require a thousand light years in order to send their beams within range of human vision. As light-travels at 186,000 miles a second, the distance it would speed in a year is readily recognized as considerable. It may be figured out if one cares to do so, but the figures could not convey anything very definite to the human intelligence.

Astronomers make known that Mars is now flying in the direction of the earth at the rate of 975,000 miles a day. Of course were this rate and direction to be maintained, there would ensure some sort of catastrophe. The knowledge that Mars is performing an accustomed astral stunt, and will swing on its orbit while the distance between the two bodies is still, in round numbers 40,000,000 miles, tends to assuage alarm. Across this gap no real intimacy is possible. Even the warlike Mars will be incapable of hurling effective bolts.

Perhaps when the instruments used by science have been more nearly perfected, it will be within the power of astronomers to learn more of Mars than now they know. Here and there is one who professes to be aware that Mars is peopled, and to have some inkling of Martian habits, but the majority dissent. If there are Martians, it is not given mundane creatures even to have a nodding acquaintance with them yet.

Using the mails to demand money, and naming dynamite and torch as the penalties for refusal, is a dangerous business. Two men who tried it on a citizen of Pasadena have gone to the penitentiary for two years to think it over. There are reasons to fear that more of their type still are at large.

One trick is met by another.

A WELSH PASSION PLAY

Monsignor Bickerstaffe Drew, a novelist and essayist of some reputation who has used the pen name of John Ayscough, has recently given in the press an account of a curious Passion Play on the island of Caldey, which lies off the Welsh coast about three miles from Tenby. It is given by the Benedictine monks there. It is performed on every Friday during Lent and on Monday and Tuesday of Holy week. The performance begins at about 7 o'clock in the evening and lasts two hours.

It is markedly unlike other Passion Plays in several respects. In the first place, there are no female actors, but each character is represented by a monk. The monks are dressed in their habits of white wool, all except the one who represents Christ, who is girdled in white linen reaching to the ground, and wears a long stole of the priesthood.

Another point is that no character speaks. There is no scenery. And the action does not take place on a stage. On the contrary, the stage of the hall in which the play is given is occupied by the audience, who look down into the auditorium, in which the fourteen actions of the play take place.

The entire performance is not intended to be a stage play, but rather a Meditation and an Offering. The audience makes no difference. There may be many or none present.

The absence of costumes, scenery and dialogue demand a singular art to supply their place, and it is there; also a singular absorption in the thing done, and that is there.

In place of the dialogue there is a group of singers behind curtains. One of these sings in a recitative throughout the play. He recites in a monotonous chant appropriate passages of Scripture as they are called for, describing the events of the Divine tragedy.

One chanter gives the words of Peter, another those of Judas, Pilate or Caiaphas. When the multitude is supposed to speak the whole group sing, and the chant is harmonized. The words used by Christ are also sung by an unseen performer. But the various characters enact their several parts and illustrate their words by their actions. The lighting of the fourteen scenes is amazingly skillful. In the supreme scene of all it fades to complete darkness till only the Crucified One is visible through the gloom.

The words chanted are those of the Gospels only, without addition, and they are given in English.

"Those looking down among the actors in this sequence of scenes," says Monsignor Bickerstaffe Drew, "have no sense of watching a play, but know they are beholding a number of intense believers engaged in a deep single act of faith. It is incomparably more impressive than any play, more arresting and more moving. What one beholds is not the skilled manipulation of machinery, for there is no machinery, but soul action, straitly restrained. There is throughout a profoundly moving and noble reticence."

The theater originated in the church, and there is no reason in the nature of things why the church should not have a place for it in the future.

THE LISTENING POST

One time there was a truth.
That existed from the earliest period of thinking.

And continued to exist through all of the wars and persecutions and trials and troubles of the human family.

The truth was the right of persons to spiritual and intellectual freedom of opinion.

That no one man or set of men could cram ideas down the throats of others.

And compel them to give assent.
Under pain of torture or prison or death.

And that truth was the bane of bigots.
Of despots and intolerant fanatics.

For in it they saw the end of their rule and control.

For despotism and bigotry and fanaticism and intolerance have always survived by force.

By fear and threat and persecution.
They have never thrived in the free soil of intellectual liberty.

And as that truth as to the right of men to enjoy spiritual and intellectual liberty and freedom of thought and action came to grow and flourish, despotism was alarmed.

And said it must be killed.
For it was a menace to establish institutions.

And despotism set about to destroy intellectual and spiritual liberty.

And men were sent about with swords.
With faggots.
With daggers and ropes and racks and the like.

To destroy intellectual freedom.

And made men subservient to brutal force and power.

But despotism failed of its purpose.
For as fast as one man was destroyed another sprang into his place.

And eventually more men found that despotism was a menace and a brute thing that needed to be destroyed.

And finally despotism was destroyed by the rising of people against it.

And then Bigotry took up the battle against intellectual and spiritual liberty.

The right to hold beliefs and exercise them.
And Bigotry employed various weapons.

Fear of hell fire and thumb screws and poison and anathemas and all that.

But as fast as one source of intellectual freedom was destroyed another rose in its place.

Until Bigotry failed.

And so Intolerance sought to destroy freedom of spirit and thought and action.

And intolerance made the same discovery.
That intellectual freedom could not be destroyed.

And never has been.
And will never be.

And today it is the greatest possession of the human soul.

The right to roam in far spaces of thought without manacles.

Free from the chains of precedent and tradition and creed.

At liberty to discover the truths of life if possible.
Without fear of the rack, the thumbscrew, the martyr's pyre.

JAMES W. FOLEY.

SONGS OF THE POETS

Advice to a Girl—Thomas Campion (— 1619)

Never love unless you can
Bear well all the faults of man!
Men sometimes will be jealous by,
Though but little cause they see,
And hang the head, as discontent,
And speak what straight they will repent.

Men, that but one Saint adore,
Make a show of love to more;
Beauty must be scorned in none,

Though but truly served in one:
For what is courtship but disguise?
True hearts may have dissembling eyes.

Men, when their affairs require,
Must awhile themselves retire;
Sometimes hunt, and sometimes hawk,
And not ever sit and talk—
If these and such-like you can bear,
Then like, and love, and never fear!

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

THE WIFE'S NAME

[St. Louis Star]

Mrs. Peter Oleson, democratic candidate for the United States senate in Minnesota, is wrathful because the secretary of state has ruled that she cannot appear on the ballot under her married name. The lady argues that as Mrs. Peter Oleson she is known throughout the state, but that Anna Dickie Oleson means nothing in the lives of the voters of the commonwealth.

There is nothing to substantiate the candidate's protest except sentiment. Legally she is Anna Dickie Oleson and her name would so appear in mortgages, deeds, insurance policies and other documents of value. Besides, usage in elections since the adoption of the nineteenth amendment makes the ruling of the Minnesota secretary of state proper.

Suppose Peter Oleson had married twice and both his ex-wife and his present wife chose to run for office? How would Mrs. Oleson—either one of them—want to appear on the ballot?

Then again it might be pertinent to inquire

BETWEEN OURSELVES

By DELLA STEWART

What is a home? A place of immaculate atmosphere, of unmarred furniture and unsmoked curtains, of exquisitely shining floors, spotless woodwork, perfect belongings? A place which one must enter with care and live in with more care, where a misplaced magazine or book is a misdemeanor, a stain on the table linen a crime, a scratch on a chair a tragedy? We've all been in such homes. Some of us live in them. A few of us possibly find in them the satisfaction of our highest ambition.

There's another kind of home that some of us like. It may be a bit shabby in places. There may be a mar here and there on door and wall. The furniture may be somewhat heterogeneous from necessity, not from lack of taste, but from inability to satisfy it. Its tables may hold a varied and somewhat disorderly pile of magazines, a bit of sewing may cumber a chair. A dog may repose before its comfortable fireplace, his master's easy chair drawn up beside him. The family cat may be curled up in a cozy corner of the window seat. The geraniums of the flowering window boxes may have shed a little since the morning bath. But it's a home which every member of the family hates to leave and is glad to come back to; a home where the tastes of all are thought of and catered to; a home of pleasant ways, harmonious music, happy converse, jolly games. A home to which every one can bring his hobby for indulgence in riding—whether it be bugs, books or flowers. It is a home showing plainly that it is a place to live in, not one to be escaped from.

What is a home? The real answer lies not in the perfection of its furnishings, though that is not to be desired, but rather in the happiness of its inmates, the restfulness and charm of its atmosphere, the loyalty and love of all who share it. Happy are we who are vouchsafed such a home; it is one of life's greatest gifts.

Is Mrs. Oleson seeking the suffrage of the Minnesota voters because she is the wife of Peter Oleson or because of her own qualities of statesmanship? As for the argument that she is now known as Mrs. Peter Oleson she must be planning a mighty feeble campaign if she doesn't feel capable of associating Mrs. Peter Oleson and Anna Dickie Oleson in the public mind as identical persons between now and next November.

However, with all this agitation for individualism in marriage coming out of the east, these days it is good to know that some women of prominence in this country are still glad to be identified as the wives of comparatively obscure men.

MR. WILSON STILL IN POLITICS

[Washington Star]

There is nothing plainer than that Mr. Wilson is still in politics, and not solely for the purpose of settling old scores with those democrats who while he was in the White House insisted on forming and expressing opinions of their own on matters appealing to their judgment. He is evidently thinking also of 1924, and strengthening his influence wherever opportunity presents itself. He has time for the work, and a tenacity which is defying, and so far has defeated, a grave physical affliction.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

Statisticians have been figuring the loss caused to Los Angeles by traffic accidents in 1921. They reach a startling total that almost touches twenty million dollars.

To find this aggregate the economic value of individuals is reckoned, and each death set down as a loss to be measured in terms of money. The individual of over 72 is omitted from this reckoning on the theory that his productive days were ended by age.

It is difficult to regard such a system as accurate. To state that an individual represents a definite value, is to state something hard to prove. There are men and women who may not be considered as assets at all, but as community liabilities. The loafer who never works is quite as likely as anybody else to be running an automobile at fatal speed. If he causes an accident that closes his career, his passing does not represent an economic loss. On the contrary, it may mark the finish of a parasite, and so be counted as a gain. The mere fact that a person is alive does not give him a value.

There are many in every city who have passed the age of 72, and yet whose death in each instance, would be a catastrophe, a hindrance to great enterprises, the crippling of charity, the lessening of public spirit. But it is beyond the power of the statistician to place tags on them, and express the aggregate worth of such citizens at the foot of the added column.

All this is not to deny that the loss by traffic accidents is not appalling as it relates to fatalities, and an economic crime in destruction of property.

A courteous correspondent, much esteemed for her good deeds, writes to ask the writer of this column why he thinks he knows more about Russia than Lincoln Steffens knows.

He does not entertain such a thought. Steffens has an intimate knowledge of Russia, but is not telling the truth about it.

The writer looks upon him as the paid propagandist of the bolsheviks, and as thus utterly unworthy of credence.

Ireland was exceedingly anxious for Great Britain to get out. Great Britain reluctantly acquiesced, deeming that fresh troubles of greater magnitude would ensue.

The troubles in question seem to have ensued.

There seems no chance for the Russian Reds to borrow money in this country.

Doubtless if they were to go to work, raise something to sell and put it on the market, American money would show a tendency to move in their direction.

Speakers at the chamber of commerce meeting in Washington declared that the allied debt was an injury to the country. They could not figure any method of getting joy out of the situation.

People ought to think of these things in advance. War is a very costly affair, and soon or late somebody must pay the price.

There will be some interest in the fact that government agents are holding 193 cases of Scotch whisky as evidence. It was captured at San Pedro. At first the plan had been to dump the stuff into the ocean, but this was changed, out of consideration for the morals of the fish, probably.

In some cases there is great necessity for watching the witnesses. In other cases it is the evidence that must be safeguarded. The present case is of the latter sort.

No dog forced to wear a muzzle ever again will feel exactly the same towards its master.

What would be a trifle to one individual means despair to another.

A young woman recently tried to kill herself because she was $100 in debt. It is to be hoped that she recovers, and that the creditors will not be pressing.

A man sentenced for drunkenness, and released two days before the expiration of his sentence, celebrated his good fortune by a wood alcohol spree. His death followed.

Such incidents as these are far from rare, nor are they to be so deeply regretted as might appear on the surface. They are helping to lessen the demand for intoxicants.

Moreover, the man who drinks stuff that he knows cannot be taken save at the risk of his life, hasn't a life that is of any value to himself or to society.

When the lowlands of Louisiana were flooded, recently 1000 convicts were turned loose. They were without guards, and there was every chance for them to run away.

Not a man ran away. On the contrary they all stayed and performed heroic rescue work. Bad citizens, most of them, of course. But how easily they might have been worse! And how strong is the latent impulse to be decent, kind and useful!

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

Every now and then Maggie comes over to our house and closes her eyes and puts her head on the back of a chair and just oozes fatigue and discouragement and nerves. If any one says anything to her she says:

"A-h-h-h!"

And let's it go at that. But in half an hour or so her dynamo has been rewound and her eyes are bright again and she has spring in her heels and she is on the way. About that time I say:

"How's Jim?"

"Ah," says Maggie, cryptically. "Jim!" And she smiles at me and goes on.

The theory is that Jim is a total loss. Oh, loving, of course, and helpful in his weak way, and rather nice looking, and Maggie is very fond of her husband. But Jim is supposed to be the Human Squash, from a business point of view. He never tackled anything in the world that didn't flatten out on him. If he bought the mint some one would soak him with a lot of tin silver. Whereas Maggie is a commercial wonder. She is forever having ideas and they are always working out. She makes talks every week or two before some commercial club. If Jim, poor cuss, ever tried any fool stunt like that they would laugh him out of the house.

Yet Maggie is a complete failure.

Give Maggie her way and she would spend two dollars for every one she took in. She has ideas, vision, pep, vim, zip—but she cannot harness these things. She will tackle anything on earth. She isn't afraid of responsibility, bankruptcy, Niagara Falls, or mice. The mere idea of responsibility crushes poor Jim. He is hypnotized by it. It scares him pallid. Relieve him of the bugaboo of responsibility and he can see every flaw and every strong spot. He is the ideal manager if you hide the fact from him that he is IT.

So Maggie had her business collapse because she wasn't practical, and Jim had his because he was afraid. Then they got married, and every one predicted failure. Instead of which, they were the ideal business team.

One of the best things about the combination is that Maggie thinks she is the whole thing. Jim thinks she is, too.

SOBERING A NATION LIKE HANDLING DRUNKARD

So Says Rev. J. C. Livingston, at Casa Verdugo Methodist Church

When you undertake to sober up a state or a nation you have the same task on hand as when you try to sober up a man. Rebellion against the eighteenth amendment harks back to the craving for alcohol and alcoholic privilege strikes at the industrial and social life of our land, declared Rev. J. C. Livingston at the Casa Verdugo Methodist church on Sunday. He said in part: "What is labor? True, the man in the mill, the foundry, the mine, the shop, the forest and the field, these are all laborers. But their are not the only hands employed in their tasks. The home, the school, the church, the baker, the shoemaker, and all other occupations necessary to his comfort are parts of his particular job. Hence, anything that in any sense deprecates his efficiency effects also every other link in the chain.

"Trade has an interesting origin. The aborigines lived in the field of need and did not want much beyond that need. A blanket, a wigwam, bow and arrow, the bison, the deer, the wild turkey and the fish of the streams about summed up his ideal of living. But by and by he saw the white man's home, his gun, his clothes, and a new want being created, he moved up from the field of his absolute need and began to barter, as the things he had had value in the realm of exchange. Hence, bakers and butchers and carpenters and tailors and shoemakers were multiplied, even as wants were multiplied, and trade was established. In that field the most valuable unit is, of course, the trader who has need of the greatest quantities and varieties. Has it been human experience that the best customer of alcoholic beverages of high or low content has been also the best customer of the baker and the butcher, the clothier or the shoemaker? Has not this brazen out-law in the field of exchange ever cut across every interest of production and exchange?

But let us be fair and try to fit this thing into the field of productive values. The tree of the forest has an enhanced value when shaped by the hand of man into furniture of a house. Leather has a greater value in the shoe store than in the tannery. Grain has a greater value in the loaf than in the field. Now, fit your outflow traffic of high or low content into that scheme of created values. The Kansas farmer sells a bushel of corn that in turn reaches the illicit still, then, at a tremendously inflated value the bootlegger, and in turn, the man of alcoholic appetite. Thousands in starving Europe die for the need of corn. All the office that portion filled was to degrade the flag of our land; enrich an out-law; and further debauch a citizen who had an alcoholic appetite.

"Beer is said to have good qualities. Does anybody claim that alcohol has good qualities? Allow five cents worth of flour to the Mexican's big griddle cake, that unwholesome and indigestible cake has in it more carbohydrate quality than is to be found in 200 glasses of 3 percent beer. But, of course, lacking the alcoholic content, the former does not meet the demand of the depraved appetite for whose protection the constitution has forfeited itself."

GOV'T ALASKA RAILROAD TO OPEN

SEWARD, Alaska, May 22.—The government's railroad, 475 miles long, is open and doing business. The Alaska railroad is a feat of railroad engineering. Great difficulties were encountered in driving the road from Seward on the coast to the interior at Fairbanks. The finishing touches were put on the road in February, and it was put on a business basis, and is now operating regularly.

The road is expected to yield big returns, not only from the rail profits alone, but from the fact that it taps the great Alaskan coal fields. The government will benefit greatly from the exploitation of this land. The coal is of a grade highly desired all along the Pacific coast, especially for navigation purposes.

The cost of the road, despite mountain work, was only $7800 per mile, while the cost of most other roads in the United States, even in flat country, has been well over $100,000 a mile.

The Barton Bedtime Stories

OH, MY, WHAT A SCOLDING!

By JOHN BARTON
(Copyright, 1921, by Associated Newspapers)

Poor Frisk Squirrel! He didn't feel frisky when his mother got through with him. She had heard the splashing and the spluttering as the good old Daddy Duck hauled him out of the Beaver Pond. Down their willow-tree she bounced, so bristling with rage that the sensible bird flew off before she could pick a quarrel with him.

Of course, she took it all out on poor Frisk. "Wet as usual!" she shrieked. "This is the third time you've fallen in. Next time you'll drown for sure and certain. You bad, disobedient little dragletail. I've told you to keep out of that water dozens of times. Aren't you ever going to learn?"

"Oh, yeth, I've learnt now," he sobbed. "I won't do it again. Daddy Duck des' thplained, and I pwnomed him. Not till I hath ear-tuffs." But that didn't save him from her angry paws. She boxed his poor ears till he was almost afraid he wouldn't have any left to wear his tufts on.

"Daddy Duck!" she raved. "A fine cue to promise. He just puts you up to this. He ought to have more sense. If he's going to make me all this trouble he just take care of you after this."

Poor Frisk wished he would. He felt the need of a nice gentle beak to squeeze his sopping little coat. Did his mother bother herself to lick it? I guess not. She wanted her tongue for talking. She made him roll on the grass and then sit where the wind could comb his fur for him.

Of course, that gave him the shivers. But it gave him the giggles, too. It was a lovely trick to learn. He wouldn't crawl into their hole again all smelly-wet so he'd know right off what he'd been doing. And he wasn't so very cold in that nice warm sun. "Why don't you behave yourself like your brothers and sisters do?" she was saying. "They're proper squirrels. But you don't behave like any I've ever seen. Such foolishness! I can't think where you get it from. Certainly not from me. Probably from your father's family—a wild lot they certainly were; I wish I'd never seen him. Now, poor, dear Chatter—"

She forgot that she and Chatter used to quarrel till the very black-birds laughed at them.

But Frisk didn't listen at all. "What will she say when she sees me swim?" he was thinking. Oh, yes, his mind was still set on that, before I came."

He Was Just Beginning to Have a Notion When She Chased Him Home, Still Scolding.

ginning to have a notion when she chased him home, still scolding.

NEXT STORY: FRISK TRIES A TUFT FROM TAD COON'S TAIL.

SETTLING A DISPUTE

Two fussy traveling saleswomen were riding in opposite seats in the train. One thought the car was too hot, the other said it was too cold.

Just then a dusky porter came through. "Porter," commanded the first woman, "I wish you'd open that window, I'm nearly smothered."

"Don't you do it," snapped the other. "If you do I'll freeze to death."

The porter scratched his head. "What you 'spose Ah should do in a case like dat?" he asked a portly looking traveling man, about two seats to the rear, trying to enjoy a little reading.

"Open it a while and freeze one; then shut it and smother the other,"—Forbes Magazine.

THEY WERE SCARED AWAY

"Well, Lena, did you get the germs driven out of the sick-room in your cleaning this morning?"

Lena—"I looked under the bed and in the corners, but couldn't find any, ma'am. I guess they left before I came."

TURPIN'S FAME
Ben Turpin's press agent is said to be responsible for a story that the comedian's admirers enjoy, whether it is true or not. Turpin approached the teller of a strange bank with a check to be cashed. The teller did not recognize him. Such is fame! "Have you any way to identify yourself?" asked the non-movie-attending teller. "Sure," replied Ben, and he became cross-eyed and did his great film fall. "Now, do you know me?" he asked confidently. "No," answered the teller, "but here's your money. You have earned it."—The Argonaut.

CIRCUITS
Definition of Circuits—The conducting path necessary to equalize a difference of potential, is termed a circuit, and the current is said to flow from the point of high to the point of lower potential. A simple circuit is accordingly composed of the source of current, as a battery or generator, the apparatus to which this source of current is connected, such as a lamp, and the conducting wires between the two. If there be any break in the conductors, the circuit is said to be open; if all the connections are made so that the current passes through the circuit, it is said to be closed.

Series Circuit—For example of the series circuit we will take three ordinary dry cells. The positive terminal of one cell would go to the negative of the next cell, the positive terminal of the second cell would go to the negative of the third cell and the negative of the first cell would be the two wires which would run to the lamp, bell, or whatever use it is to be put to. These batteries are said to be connected in series with one another.

Parallel Circuit—Now, if these three batteries were to be connected with all of the positive terminals on the same side of the circuit and all of the negative terminals on the same side of the circuit, they would be termed as being connected in parallel, or in multiple.

Multiple-Series Circuit—Taking two batteries of three cells each, the three cells of each set being connected in series with each other, and connect the two batteries in parallel with each other, and it is termed a parallel series circuit, or a multiple series circuit.

Series-Multiple—Taking the two sets of cells, connecting the three cells of each battery and connect them in parallel. When these three cells are connected together they are termed as a battery. Now connect the two batteries in series, and it will be termed a series-parallel or series-multiple circuit.

Shunt Circuit—A shunt circuit is a divided circuit, that is, practically a circuit on a circuit, and is really one form of multiple circuit. Voltmeters are always connected in this way, that is, shunted across the line, since they are designed to measure the potential only and require a minimum current for this purpose. If a voltmeter is in series with the circuit by mistake, very little current can be drawn from the circuit beyond the instrument, as the high resistance of the voltmeter will prevent its passage. The shunt wound fields of motors and generators are so familiar examples with which the average student will have to acquaint himself. The speed of a shunt wound motor may be decreased below normal by a rheostatic controller in series with its armature, and may be increased by means of a rheostat in series with the field windings. The latter rheostat is known as a field rheostat and, to be effective, must have a high resistance owing to the small current which flows through the shunt field winding.

Short Circuits—Where a shunt or by-path, of negligible or comparatively small resistance is established around any part of an electric circuit, through which so much of the current passes so as to virtually cut out parts of the circuit to which it acts as a shunt, a short circuit is said to exist.

Ground—Should one of the wires in a circuit lose its insulation at a point which permitted it to come into contact with a conductor or any conducting material, connected with the earth or with the other side of the circuit, a short circuit would result, which is commonly termed as being "grounded." A ground is accordingly a short circuit, but all short circuits are not grounds. For example, when an accumulation of carbon dust from the brushes of a direct-current motor or generator collects between the commutator bars, the commutator bars are said to be grounded. When the failure of the insulation of part of the armature or field winding allows it to come into contact with the core a ground results.

WITH THE RADIO SCHOOL AND CLUB

Tonight's theory class again, and we want to see an exceptionally good attendance this evening, as it will be necessary for the resignation of George Drinkwater to be read and accepted or refused. In case of acceptance, it will be necessary to elect a new secretary. The study will be continued from that assigned last Friday night.

WOULDN'T IT BE GREAT?

Bugs Baer of the Los Angeles Examiner would talk every afternoon via radio. We would all stop and study the "Q" signals? So that some of us would understand QRT and QRM?

NOTE

Mr. J. F. Dillon, radio inspector of the Sixth district, will be in Los Angeles, June 9th and 10th. On Friday, June 9, he will give examinations for first and second grade commercial licenses, and on Saturday, June 10, will give examinations for armature, first and second grade. If you are content, please getting a license, here is your chance. Just address a letter to Mr. J. F. Dillon, Radio Inspector, Customs House, San Francisco, and state the examination you wish to take, and he will mail you a letter which entitles you to attend and partake in the examinations mentioned above. And listen, fellows, when you go up to take the examination, don't be scared to death of Mr. Dillon. He is human like the rest of us, and he understands your difficulties and troubles, and when the sending test is pulled off, just copy it down as if you were sitting in the schoolroom of the radio school.

PHUNNY STUFF

This really is a true story and struck me very funny at the time. You possibly read in these columns that a new loud speaker manufactured by the Western Electric company was soon to make its debut. Well, last week there were three of us standing by a very prominent radio expert who was talking over the telephone. The party at the other end evidently inquired about this new loud speaker, and the radio expert replied that there was not another on the market like it and that you could hook it on to anything that would make a noise and the loud speaker would amplify it. One of the other parties standing nearby spoke up and told the radio expert to try it on the baby. How many desire amplifiers for their babies? Don't all speak at once.

HOW'S THIS?

Prof. X. RAY of WHEATSTONE BRIDGE, INDUCED his niece, AUDION BULB, to leave her home with the GALVANIC PILE, her LOOSE COUPLED guardian, and SWITCH to him.

She was CONDUCTED to the TERMINAL by her POLAR AFFINITY, HY. FREQUENCY. She STEPPED UP into the Pullman, where the CONDUCTOR took her as a CHARGE.

She came in CONTACT with the MISSES STATIC and WHIM-HURST, who tried to INFLUENCE her to BREAKER self away from her guardians and CIRCUULATE with them. They could not TRANSFORMER CURRENT of thought and met with such RESISTANCE that they were GROUNDED.

Would AMMETER at the STATION, she wondered, or would VOLTMETER? Possibly DYNAMO, the negro cook, would METER. She was INTERRUPTED by SPARK PLUG at this PHASE. When he tried to CUT IN on her, she SHUNTED him across the LINE so quickly it made the SPARK GAP. THE OVERLOAD on her nervous SYSTEM put her in HIGH TENSION so that when they hit a SWITCH she KICKED IT OUT, which SHOCKED some old ladies.

DISCHARGED at the STATION, DYNAMO was there to METER. They made CONNECTION with a TROLLEY and were home in a FLASH. X. RAY was glad to RECEIVE after her TRANSMISSION and hoped that it did not EXCITE.

QUESTIONS—ANSWERS

Q. How high should an aerial be? J. B. Eagle Rock.
A. An aerial should be as high as is convenient for you to put up. Of course, I don't know your exact location and what your facilities are for stringing an aerial, but I will try and get over this week and look over the situation. However, if you are able to string one wire 30 feet in the air, clear of trees, and of one strand of coped wire, it will work very good for receiving phone music. The strand should be about 75 feet long.

New Radio Station in Arctic
A radio station has just been established on Jan Mayen island, in the Arctic ocean. It is operated by Norwegians and communicates with English, Norwegian and Swedish meteorological stations. As the island is visited by sealing and whaling vessels, this communication should be of great value to them.

Inspect Fifth Naval District Radio

Radio compass stations at Cape Hatteras and Cape Lookout were inspected by the superintendent of the district on March 16 in one day by seaplane, and reported to be in excellent or very good condition. There has been a flood covering the grounds at Hatteras with from eight to 10 inches of water; repairs were found necessary at Morehead City; and the fire house at Hatteras was said to be a fire menace, but a new house is nearly finished. If the trip had been made by ordinary means, the superintendent says, he would have needed a week instead of a day in a seaplane.

Canal Zone Radio Activities

Radio operations in the Canal Zone for the week ending February 18, averaged the following words daily from each naval station: Balboa, 6,157; Colon, 1,904; Cape Mala, 371; La Palma, 69, and Puerto Obaldia, 249. The following week the traffic was a little less, the stations averaging as follows: Balboa, 4,912; Colon, 1,921; Cape Mala, 467; La Palma, 229, and Puerto Obaldia, 249.

San Francisco Naval Radio

The transcontinental and trans-Pacific circuits of the naval communication service were extended to the army headquarters at the Presidio of San Francisco early in March. In order to handle the traffic efficiently, the naval superintendent has asked the commanding general to lease a direct land wire from the Presidio to the radio station, Yerba Buena island.

Government Book on Radio

A new edition of the Principles Underlying Radio Communication, Signal Corps Communication Pamphlet No. 40, has just been published by the government printing office. Copies may be secured by addressing the superintendent of documents.

The new revised edition covers elementary electric principles, dynamo-electric machinery, radio practice, construction and operation of important types of transmission and receiving sets. It comprises 600 pages with 300 illustrations, and the international code.

Twenty-six States Broadcasting

Today there are broadcasting radio telephone stations in 26 states of the Union, California leading with 26 stations, Pennsylvania, second, with 11; New York, 9; Ohio, 8; New Jersey, 6, and District of Columbia, 5. Twenty other states have one or more stations, but 23 have no stations broadcasting as yet.

New Commercial Land Stations

Twenty-seven new commercial land stations have been added to the list of radio stations in the United States, edition of June 30, 1921, according to an announcement by the department of commerce.

NAVY'S BULB TRANSMITTER IN HAWAII HEARD IN EU-REKA, CALIFORNIA

Radio signals from the naval Honolulu station (NPM) were heard at the station at Eureka, Table Bluff, Calif. (NPW), 2,081 miles distant, in a recent test conducted by naval communication service. Honolulu used a 5-KW bulb transmitter with a wavelength of 1,510 meters. The signals received at Eureka, while audible, were not readable. Naval experts say that the bulb transmitter has been used successfully for distances up to 1,000 miles, and although the signals were not readable at Eureka, over twice that distance away, the tests are considered of prime importance in developing this economical form of radio transmission.

THREE MONEY-SAVING KINKS

By RALPH H. CARD

Here are three ideas which are very practical as well as novel:
First—Have you ever wanted some stranded wire when you were in a hurry or your pocket-book was empty? If you have not, you are a lucky "bug," but the time may come when you will be in just such a predicament, and here is a way to pull yourself out.
Put a number of wires together, one end to a nail or hook on the wall, then place the other end in the chuck of your hand drill, making sure that they are all even. Stand back far enough to pull the wires taut, not too tight, then turn the crank of the drill slowly until the wires are twisted into one.

This makes a neat, smooth, stranded wire which is excellent for your antenna or for any other purpose where stranded wire is superior.

By using cotton covered wire you can make a neat power cable. Several strands of wire from the secondary of a spark coil makes a neat wire for winding variometers and other regenerative coils.

Second—Some time when you want a few volts for experimental work, you can get them out of those old dead dry cells which are under the cellar stairs. Remove the cardboard wrappers and punch the zinc full of holes. Then get as many large-mouthed mason jars as you have batteries. Do not do this unless you are on good terms with the cook, as the cells will expand and can not be removed from the jars. Place the batteries in the jars and fill with a solution of water containing one-fourth vinegar and adding a teaspoonful of salt to each jar. Connect the cells in series and let them set for a day. When the cells are saturated, you will have a battery which will serve quite well in an emergency.

Third—Do you know that if you have a smooth, straight-grained board you can make a neat panel for your C. W. set? We all know that Bakelite and Formica are the best materials for panels, but they are both expensive and when it comes to cutting the holes for the meters you certainly have a job before you. The main objection to wood is the grain marks which spoil the appearance of the panel, and as it is not a perfect insulator, it is best to mount the binding posts on fiber strips in the rear of the panel. The large meter holes may be drilled with a regular expansion bit. The panel is prepared, in the following manner: Smooth the wood off with sandpaper first, then purchase a pint of dark metal primer such as is used by auto body painters. After you have strained the primer through cheese-cloth, give the panel a good heavy coat and leave it for a day to dry. The next step is to rub it with a very fine sandpaper, always rubbing in the same direction with the grain. Now you are ready for the last step, which is to give the panel another coat of primer. This coat should be applied in a room where no dust can fall on the panel. The second coat should be applied very thinly and evenly.

SUNDAY SCHOOL MEETING WAS A BIG SUCCESS

Rev. Cole Pronounces It the Best He Has Ever Attended

In regard to the County Sunday School convention which closed here Friday night at the First Methodist church, Rev. Cole, Pastor of the Central Christian church, stated: "This has been the best Sunday school convention I have ever attended. The amalgamation of the International Sunday School Association and the Sunday School Council of evangelical denominations has made possible bigger programs and organization into the institute form so profitable to the delegates." Rev. Cole is a Sunday school enthusiast, taking a great deal of interest in this work.

FRESH AIR PLANTS RECEIVE ATTENTION

That Glendale home builders are giving more thought to ventilation than formerly is the opinion of J. C. Beldin, local heating contractor who believes an abundance of pure air is the chief requisite of a healthy home.

"Five years ago very few Glendale homes were equipped with warm air registers, but today fully half of the new homes are being so equipped," says Mr. Beldin. This tendency Mr. Beldin attributes to the perfection of the gas furnace, which he says is not only the most economical means of heating the home, but the most convenient.

A single electric push-button controls the heat of one of the latest gas furnaces.

MOON FESTIVAL OF TUJUNGANS IS CONSIDERED

Plans for Purely Local Pageant Are Now Under Way

TUJUNGA, May 22.—The advisability of holding a second moon festival of the Tujungans is being discussed by local men and women who are interested in community activities.

It is felt that while last year's festival was not wholly a success in a financial way, the community advertising which was gained thru its promotion more than made up for the loss.

Some dissatisfaction was expressed last year over the many outside concessions which were brought in, and it is believed that a purely local entertainment or pageant would give more satisfaction.

Goldindrina park, on the highway at the foot of Summit boulevard would make an ideal setting for such a pageant, and a purely Tujunga program could be worked out which would be long remembered by those who witnessed it.

There is no doubt in the minds of the promoters of the project this year that a date sometime in the fall when there is assurance of a full moon should be set, and that an organization should be effected at once to have charge of the festival's promotion.

Higher Thought Picnic
The Higher Thought college picnic at Hillhaven yesterday was a great success.

Noted speakers of Southern California gave addresses at the meeting in the natural amphitheatre, which was presided over by Dr. W. Frederick Keeler, president of the local college.

A large number of Tujunga people attended the picnic.

Foley's Friendly Fancies

JAMES W. FOLEY

BILL
Tom was studious, Jim was bright.
And Bill, he was tough and hardy;
Percy was gentle and so polite,
And was never absent or tardy.
And they went to school in the good old days,
Each with his manners and dreams and ways.

Tom was earnest and Jim was good,
But Bill was a bit erratic.
And Percy solved, as he always could,
Equations and things quadratic.
And the teacher was certain of Tor and Jim
And Percy, but Bill—well, she feared for him.

Tom was punctual, Jim on time,
But Bill was a truant surely;
Percy did wonders in prose and rhyme,
And he never did anything poorly.
Tom, Jim and Percy went good and strong
In lessons, but Bill just dubbed along.

Tom was courteous, Jim was kind,
But Bill, he was gruff and surly.
When Percy had problems to do, you'd find
He was at them late and early.
And they went to school in the good old days,
And grew up and went their several ways.

Now I know you think I am going to tell
How Bill, by his operations,
Grew rich and famous and did so well
That he upset all expectations.
But he didn't! The others went good and strong,
But Bill continued to dub along!

MADGE KENNEDY

'HUSH MONEY' AT THE GLENDALE

Everyone who has ever been in love—and everybody who ever expects to be in love will want to see Madge Kennedy in her latest picture, "The Highest Bidder," at the T. D. & L. Theatre.

It is a story of the great love that comes but once to every man, but which some men are too blind to see, or too stubborn to follow.

Newell Alton, the T. D. & L.'s new organist delighted the audience last night with his selections. As previously stated by Ralph Allan, Alton is a very accomplished artist and proved it yesterday.

PRESBYTERIAN EPWORTH LEAGUE MEN ENTERTAINED AT MUSICAL

Bible Class Hears Excellent Program at City Hall

An extraordinary musical program was given the large number of men in attendance at the Presbyterian Men's Bible class in the council chamber of the city hall, Sunday morning. In addition to the chorus singing by the class a piano solo by Mr. Brooks, the class teacher, and a beautiful selection by Florence Elizabeth Mitchell, 721 East Elk street, with Henry Emerson Willey as accompanist, the mayor and Mrs. Spencer Robinson gave the class three musical numbers, "Christ Is All," "Softly and Gently Jesus Is Calling," and "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere." Every seat in the council chamber was taken and the lesson given by Keith L. Brooks, which follows, gave every man present a clearer and stronger view of the Bible's wonderful teaching.

The Reverend Mr. Brooks spoke in part, as follows:
In our study of the 24th chapter of Matthew a week ago, we saw a rather dark picture of the closing days of the present age. The idea of a world filled with the glory of man and made safe for democracy seemed to be entirely lacking in this chapter.

The story is told of an optimist who fell from the fifth-story of the Woolworth building in New York. As he passed the thirteenth story, it is said that he yelled, "Everything lovely so far." There are religionists today who, while the world is dropping into the blackness of rationalism, apostasy and materialism, are declaring that everything is lovely. Philosophers are making an heroic attempt to hope for the best, but the true believer in the Bible has "the best hope."

In the study of Matthew 25 we again meet the subject of the second coming of Christ. Ten virgins are going forth with lamps to meet the bridegroom. Five are wise and five foolish. The foolish took oil in vessels with their lamps. The lamp in the Scripture is typical of the word of God (Ps. 119:105). The oil is always a symbol of the Holy Spirit (Ps. 45:7). Thus we can see the possibility of persons having a Bible in hand without having the Holy Spirit in the heart. One can be respectable, religious, carry a Bible, and travel with devoted Christians, and still be unsaved. There are many who seem to think that if they carry the lamp like someone else, that is all that is necessary.

The wise had oil with their lamps. The vessels speak of the abiding supply of the Holy Spirit that is given to those who are born of God. There are many who burn a dry wick. They experience some touch of the convicting or illuminating work of the Spirit of God that causes a temporary flare, and yet they are devoid of the permanent indwelling of the Holy Spirit.

While the bridegroom tarried, they all slumbered. This is the diffidence toward the truth of the Lord's coming that is often prophesied in Scripture for the last days (2 Pet. 3:3-4). However, there are two kinds of sleepers. There are prepared sleepers, who sleep with their hearing alert for an expected sound. There are the unprepared sleepers, who slumber in false security. If one is not ready to meet the Lord, it is unsafe to sleep at all.

At midnight the cry was made that the bridegroom was coming. This seems to indicate a time of dense spiritual darkness prior to the Lord's coming, as prophesied in many other portions of Scripture, (2 Tim. 3:1). Many believe that the world-wide preaching of the nearness of the Lord's coming that has been heard in the last few years, constitutes the midnight cry. While this truth has been preached throughout all the Christian centuries, there never was a time when it was so widely declared as at present, and when practically the whole world of Christians are taking their stand for or against this truth.

When the foolish were awakened, they realized that they were without oil, and cried out to the wise that they would give them supplies of oil for their lamps were gone out. They went in the wrong direction for oil. Believers can only give light. They cannot supply the oil, which comes alone from God. As the psalmist said, "None of us can by any means redeem his brother, nor give to God a ransom for him."

Those who were ready went into heaven with the bridegroom at his coming, and the door was shut. 1 Cor. 15:23 tells us that those who will be taken at the time of the Lord's coming will be the true believers in Christ. They will join the company of the redeemed who have already gone on before thru the gates of death. There are some today who count upon the door being opened at some future age to permit those to enter who are to be shut out at the Lord's coming. However, there is nothing in Scripture to warrant such a supposition. The Lord is represented as saying, "I know you not." This He cannot say of any regenerated person, for the Scripture says, "The Lord knoweth them that are His." And again, "If any man love God, the same is known of Him."

OBLIGING
Barber—"If you don't hold your head up how do you expect me to shave you?"
Tired Tom—"Oh, well, if that's the way you feel about it, give me a haircut."

Program at Central Avenue Methodist Church Is Enjoyable

Sunday was a big day in the history of the church and league. The Epworth leaguers had charge of the entire day's program. The morning service was especially prepared for the old folks of the community, and a goodly number responded to the invitation given. Automobiles provided transportation. The church was artistically decorated with roses on which were small Epworth league emblems, and the same emblems were worn by members of the league. Special numbers were given by the choir, then Rev. T. E. Carter of the Oklahoma conference gave the sermon. His subject was taken from Isaiah 40-51.

The Epworth league at 6:45 was led by the old cabinet, Miss Ella Dyksten, first vice president, having charge of the program. At 7:10 the pastor had charge of the opening service, the league giving the responsive reading. Then came the pageant, "The League Looking Glass," which took the main part of the program. The cast included: Bob (a leaguer), Albert Hewitt; Paul (a prospective member), Harold Williams; Messenger, Norman Frahm; Dr. Black, Ruthford Wallace; Mr. Evans (the pastor), Rev. Brink; Rose (president of the Epworth league), Mildred Williams; second vice president, Ruth; Esther Rose, Ethel, Elsie Dyksten; Margaret, Genevieve Zimmerman; Meta, Mrs. Hewitt; Jack, Donald Frahm.

The idea of the pageant was to give the true meaning of the Epworth league and its emblem.

The whole of the evening collection was dedicated to the centenary program, after a brief talk on the same by Mrs. Towle. Speeches were called for by the pastor from the retiring president, Albert Hewitt, and the president-elect, Harold Williams, after which the new cabinet officers were installed, who are as follows:

Harold Williams, president; Ella Dyksten, first vice president; Mildred Williams, second vice president; Ruthford Wallace, third vice president; William Marple, fourth vice president; Genevieve Zimmerman, secretary; Donald Frahm, treasurer; Olive Gulick, organist; Myrtle Harwood, junior league superintendent; Emily Kopp, chorister.

NEW CHIROPRACTOR MOVES TO GLENDALE

Dr. H. B. Moore, chiropractor, has just opened new offices in room 16, Central building, over the Glendale State bank. Dr. Moore is a graduate of the Pacific Chiropractic College, which is one of the best equipped and most up-to-date colleges in America.

He has taken two post-graduate courses in this profession and is licensed under the state laws of Oregon. Dr. Moore has been in constant practice for eleven years, so his patients may be assured of efficient service. Consultation given free of charge.

LOSING A CUSTOMER
"I want a pint of alcohol," she said.
"I'm very sorry—" began the druggist.
"But, you see, I wanted to remove some paint."
"Oh, if it's for a face lotion it's all right."

BUY A DIRECTORY CARD

I WISH YOU MIGHT HAVE BEEN WITH ME when I dropped in at the GLENDALE MEAT MARKET, 632 E. Broadway—for Mr. Ingledue was explaining to me a bit about his selection of meat! It seems that in all of the packing houses Mr. Ingledue is known for "an awful crank"—just because he refuses to accept any and all carcasses that they might wish to sell him cheap! Instead, my dear, he goes through the stock himself, selecting only the best and most perfect—and rejecting any pieces that might show bruises or other damage! Thus it is that although the packers think him a "crank"—his customers know him to be absolutely reliable—selling only the freshest and best cuts—at lowest market prices! Call Glendale 1230 for delivery!

HAVE YOU EVER TASTED ANY OF THE PERFECTLY DELICIOUS food from the GATEWAY MARKET BAKERY—the corner of San Fernando Rd. and Brand Blvd.? Well, then, my dear, you've indeed a rare treat in store for you—for it is unusually palatable! Don't bother to bake on such warm, summery days as these—at least, not so long as you can buy the best at prices that are far below the actual cost of such baking at home—as is the case at the Gateway Market Bakery! Oh! and don't forget to buy a dozen or so of the "scrumptious" home-made doughnuts—and some delectable French pastry for the evening's refreshments!

A stunning street frock is made of very fine serge in the darkest shade of blue, with embroidery in cyclamen red. A giraffe cut in one with the upper section of the back is tied at the left side to a giraffe cut in one with the front of the frock.

IT SEEMS REASONABLE
Mrs. Penderosa—"Your reducing treatment has been highly recommended, but your terms are frightfully steep!"
Dr. Slimmer—"That's an important part of the treatment. After paying my fee in advance you won't have enough money left to buy much rich fattening food."

AN OLD FRIEND
Mrs. Talltimber—"I made a scarecrow for the garden out of the clothes the hired man left here, but it don't seem to do no good."
Her Husband—"No wonder. They think it's the hired man. When he left he had a bluejay's nest in his hair an' a brood of sparrows in his coat pocket."
